Read Genesis 3 and Romans 8

Have topics such as the environment and creation care been difficult to integrate with your faith? What has felt like the biggest barrier?

Psalm 19:1 tells us about the skies declaring God's glory. What aspect of the natural world speaks to you most often about God and in what way?

The sermon suggested that creation care is also care for the least of these because the poor are those most often impacted by pollution and climate change. Does that change the conversation? If so, how?

The Bible speaks often of the concept of stewardship. How would you define that in terms of our relationship to creation?

How do we act responsibly and faithfully in our relationship to the planet in a way that doesn't become a new legalistic set of rules or cause us to judge others for their choices?
